Measure D Hiring Update

by Jamie Turbak, Library Director

In June 2018, Oakland voters passed “The 2018 Oakland Public Library Preservation Act”, more familiarly known as Measure D. Measure D provides funds for more books and computers, but perhaps most importantly, it provides expanded hours of service. On April 1, 2019, Oakland Public Library began keeping our doors open an additional 226 hours per week, inclusive of six or seven days per week and at least one additional evening at every location.

In order to do this, we needed more staff! I’m happy to say that since the passage of Measure D, we have hired 174 Library employees, an average of about 10 each month. Eighty-three people were new and live throughout different neighborhoods in Oakland. An additional 78 people were formerly temporary part-time employees who now work permanently with benefits and guaranteed work schedules. The remaining 13 were permanent staff who received promotions.

The transition away from large numbers of temporary part-time employees has been a long-time goal for the Library. We now have a more reliable and equitably compensated workforce. I believe permanent employment provides more financial stability and retention of library staff that, in turn, allows them to better focus on serving their community.

I’m extremely proud of the staff who work for Oakland Public Library and grateful for this opportunity to hire and promote such dedicated employees.

Get to Know Your Grants: 2019-2020 Mini-Grants Selected

by Sara DuBois, OPL Coordinator, Grants & Volunteers

In 2016-17, the Friends of the OPL Board came up with an innovative idea: setting aside a portion of the Annual Grants to the library for a mini-grants program. Individual library staff members – at all locations and in all capacities – were encouraged to think of innovative ways to improve service to the community and apply for a small grant to implement these improvements. This program was an immediate success, with twenty applications submitted and nine approved.

The mini-grant program allows library staff with great ideas to quickly make them a reality. It has been a fantastic source of inspiration and it has had a wonderful impact throughout the system.

Each year the library submits a “wish list” of grant requests to the Friends of the Oakland Public Library. This list comprises projects that library staff would like to pursue, but which simply aren’t possible without extra funding. The 2019-20 list included a request for $20,000 in Mini-Grants funding, which was approved. The library is very grateful for the possibilities that these grants create. For more information, please contact Grants Coordinator Sara DuBois at sdubois@oaklandlibrary.org or (510) 238-6572.
OPL Library Advocates Gather for 7th Annual Holiday Mixer

by Kathryn Sterbenc

More than 80 of Oakland Public Library’s hard-working advocates gathered at the African American Museum & Library at Oakland (AAMLO) for the 7th Annual OPL Advocates Holiday Mixer on Sunday, Dec. 8. The event was co-hosted by the City of Oakland Library Advisory Commission and the Friends of the Oakland Public Library.

Advocate groups represented at the event included the Library Advisory Commission; Friends of the OPL and its Bookmark Bookstore; Save Oakland Libraries; the Youth Leadership Council; OPL Teen Advisory Boards; SEIU 1021; IFPTE 21; and multiple powerhouse Branch Friends groups representing the Asian, Dimond, Elmhurst, Lakeview, Melrose, Piedmont Avenue, Rockridge and West Oakland Branches, as well as the Tool Lending Library and the newly formed Friends of the Main Library. Also present were members of the Friends of the Hoover-Durant Public Library, who are working hard to bring a branch back to their area of West Oakland.

AAMLO Chief Curator Bamidele Agbasegbe-Demerson opened the program with exciting information about the programming, mission and goals of this jewel of the city’s library system. AAMLO is dedicated to the discovery, preservation, interpretation and sharing of historical and cultural experiences of African Americans in California and the West for present and future generations. Agbasegbe-Demerson’s remarks were followed by deep expressions of thanks from Oakland City Council Members Dan Kalb (District 1) and Sheng Thao (District 4).

Jamie Turbak, OPL’s Director of Library Services, then wowed the crowd with an update about Measure D, the parcel tax overwhelmingly approved by Oakland voters in June 2018. OPL expanded hours at its 16 neighborhood branches, the Main Library, AAMLO, and the Tool Lending Library and has also added 174 library employees thus far, thanks to Measure D funding.

Then came the segment that’s become a favorite part of this annual event – when OPL librarians talk about their favorite programs. Sharon McKellar, Teen Services Supervising Librarian, told the crowd about Teen Field Trips, while Eastmont Branch Manager Susan Martinez talked about the life-changing Cooking Workshops being offered at her branch. Both programs are funded by Mini-Grants from the Friends of the OPL. These are grants of up to $2,000 each that fund the implementation of a new service or program proposed by library staff. Cataloging Librarian Elia Shelton then discussed OPL’s involvement with the 2020 Census.

The celebration ended with a powerful performance by 2019 Vice Youth Poet Laureate Eleanor Wikstrom.

All of that was accompanied by delicious food, music, and gorgeous decorations provided by library commissioners and advocates. Thanks to all for an inspiring event and another banner year of supporting Oakland Public Library!

Community Members Drum Up Support for a New Library Branch

by Ronile Lahti

A bit of history: for many years the Hoover Durant area had access to two branch libraries: the North Oakland Branch located at 3424 San Pablo Avenue which opened in 1888 and the Telegrove Branch at 34th and Grove Street – now Martin Luther King Way – which opened in 1930. The Telegrove Branch was closed in 1950 and the construction of Interstate 980 caused the closure of the North Oakland Branch by the 1980’s. The 2006 Oakland Public Library Master Facilities Plan included a library for Hoover Durant described as a “one story facility with parking or joint-use with other community services” at “an estimated project cost of $9-11M for 10,000 SF building including budget for land.” Unfortunately, the 2006 Library Improvement and Expansion Bond (Measure N) failed by 2.4% and the Hoover Durant project and other facility upgrades in the plan were shelved.

Enter Alternier Baker Cook and the creation of the Friends of the Hoover Durant Public Library (FOHDPL). Many have described Alternier as a “force of nature” – she is certainly a committed library advocate and her current focus is the return of a branch library to the Hoover Durant neighborhood. Under Alternier’s leadership the Friends have taken this issue to their community, garnering tremendous support for the goal of a new facility by 2022.

Current status: the Friends are now estimating $9-25M for an 8-12,000 SF building including budget for land. During the last budget cycle, the City Council approved $500K for a Hoover-Durant feasibility study which is scheduled to take place in 2020. The FOHDPL, a 501(c)(3) tax-exempt corporation, has identified two possible locations: 2810 West Street, formerly the Marcus Foster School, and 3000 Market Street. They’ve also acquired an impressive list of over 40 partners, supporters, and sponsors from the business, government, and non-profit communities and have an active fund-raising campaign, Facebook page, and a web-site in the works. In the meantime, they are keeping the community engaged through a series of Street Corner Libraries (the next one is planned for the first quarter of 2020) where books and refreshments are available along with updates on their quest for a permanent location. This is not a group that’s sitting still.

The Friends of the Hoover Durant Public Library meet the first Thursday of every month at the West Oakland Youth Center, 3233 Market Street, 5:30pm.

Did You Know... The 2020 Census is coming and the OPL is READY!

Having accurate census information is absolutely critical to making sure every Oaklander is counted. 2020 is the first Census that will be filled out primarily online and OPL is partnering with the City of Oakland and the Alameda County Complete Count Committee to publicize that there is free Wifi and free public access to computers for people to come in and fill out the Census. In addition, library staff will be trained on how to assist a patron in completing the Census, and how to access language and disability services for patrons that require them.

OPL Youth Poet Laureate Applications Due February 3, 2020

The Oakland Youth Poet Laureate program is an unprecedented citywide effort to celebrate literacy through poetry and connect young writers to far-reaching opportunities. Each year OPL accepts applications from talented Oakland writers (ages 13-18) to join a community of young poets. The Laureate earns an educational scholarship. The Laureate and Finalists will serve as ambassadors for literacy, arts and youth expression with ongoing opportunities for performances, projects, and peer support. Starting in 2020, every applicant will be invited to stay connected with the OYPL community.

The Oakland Youth Poet Laureate program is supported by an alliance of community partners representing Oakland’s leading arts, education and community organizations. Scholarship funding is provided by the Friends of the Oakland Public Library, with administrative and academic support by Scholarship America. The Oakland Youth Poet Laureate program is run by the Oakland Public Library’s Teen Services department with support from the Friends of the Oakland Public Library. See http://www.oaklandlibrary.org/youthpoets for more details.

Too Good: A Poem by Eleanor Wikstrom, Oakland's Vice YPL

When Dr. Christine Blasey Ford testified, with a national audience, during the Senate Judiciary Committee hearing for Brett Kavanaugh’s Supreme Court nomination, that he sexually assaulted her when they were teenagers, Eleanor Wikstrom wrote a poem. With this poem, “Too Good,” and two other poems, she applied to the Oakland Youth Poet Laureate program and became Oakland’s 2019 Vice Youth Poet Laureate.

Eleanor has been performing all over town and in October performed “Too Good” at the YWCA Silicon Valley’s Inspire Luncheon. There, she shared the stage with Dolores Huerta and Dr. Christine Blasey Ford herself. You can watch Eleanor’s performance here: https://youtu.be/5KtisSSQkXY

Dr. Ford was receiving the YWCA Empowerment Award and said, “It’s funny, I was inspired by Anita Hill when I was deciding whether to testify but it didn’t occur to me at the time that I would be inspiring anyone else,” Ford said. “Eleanor, I couldn’t ask for a greater gift than to know I inspired your poem.”

Eleanor is an Oakland native who has been writing prose and poetry since she could form sentences. Currently a senior at Skyline High School, Eleanor is involved in several clubs and a co-founder of the organization Oakland Students for Public Education, which empowers OUSD students to advocate for public education reform at the Capitol. She is also the cross country / track team captain and holds multiple all-time records for the city of Oakland in the distance events. An avid writer, Eleanor has won numerous awards for prose and poetry, including the Youth Activist Award from the California Teachers Association, and was named a 2020 YoungArts Finalist in Writing / Spoken Word. This past May she partnered with composer Dominick DiOrio and the Oakland Gay Men’s Chorus to premiere a new choral piece using the text of one of her poems, which has been selected for publication by the Hal Leonard Music Corporation. As the current Oakland Youth Vice Poet Laureate, Eleanor is excited to spend her senior year harnessing the evocative power of language to promote art and activism in her community and beyond.

Friends of the OPL Say Goodbye To Longtime Board Member Ellen Moyer

November marked the close of an amazing Friends board career, as Ellen Moyer officially retired from the Friends of the OPL board after 12 years of service.

Ellen was first elected to the Board in November 2007. She was elected Vice President in November 2008. One year later, in November 2009, she was elected President of the Board and served as President for EIGHT years!

During that time, the Board enjoyed a wonderful continuity under her leadership. One of Ellen’s most notable and enduring accomplishments is her suggestion that the Board accept small grant requests from any OPL staff member. This blossomed into the Mini-Grants program and it became an instant favorite of board members AND OPL staff. For this and so many other reasons, we are sad to say goodbye to Ellen but wish her much joy in all of her life adventures. Come back any time, Ellen!

Homegoing by Yaa Gyasi

It's a breathtaking and poignant journey that traces the lineage of two half-sisters in Ghana, starting 300 years ago through the present day. It gives voice and powerful depth to those whose lives were brutally and unjustly scarred, silenced, and shattered by the evils of racism, colonialism, and hatred in all of their guises. It will break your heart, and also crack it back open with stories of resilience.

Welcome to Sweden (season 1), by Greg Poehler et al.

A funny TV series, from Greg Poehler, Amy Poehler’s brother. Somewhat based on his real life. He plays Bruce Evans, an accountant for celebrity clients, who moves to Sweden to live with his Swedish girlfriend; her mother is played by Lena Olin! Lots of culture shock.

Celebrating the Bookmark Volunteers

On December 12, we celebrated the Bookmark volunteers by hosting a brunch at the store in their honor. We had 30+ attendees (volunteers, Friends of the OPL Board members, and OPL library staff). The store was transformed into a cozy restaurant with tables and chairs set up in the middle of the store. The food was catered by Ann’s Catering of Berkeley. The event featured a short program with comments from Manager Phyllis Couillard, Jamie Turbak, OPL Director of Library Services, and Kathryn Sterbenc, Friends of the OPL President. Volunteers had a chance to meet others who work on different days and some discovered people they knew in common!

This is the second year we have hosted this brunch at the Bookmark and, by all accounts, the volunteers love having it there. We are ever so grateful for all of our volunteers and thank them for their commitment to the Bookmark and the greater role they play in supporting Oakland’s libraries.
